Family Update

It feels like last we wrote we were knee deep in preparing for our summer and now we are shopping for school supplies, getting ready to send Mikayla to kindergarten and Elijah to pre-school. We celebrated Heather and Elijah's birthdays and found out that Mikayla has her first loose tooth. We spent a few weeks in Grand Island, NY, and then Jackson, MI, visiting family and updating supporters. We cooled off on the Maid of the Mist, a boat that takes you up close to Niagara Falls, and saw the kids' sense of adventure while at an amusement park. We visited some of the places Heather hung out as a kid, including going mini golfing and getting ice cream at The Parlor. (An amusing highlight for Heather was she could go to her Dad's garden and see small gourds starting to grow!!)

please pray for:

A good start for Mikayla and Elijah at school.

God's leading in finding new partners.

praises—

We made it safely back to Orlando.

We had a quick van repair done just before we drove to Michigan.

It was nice to connect with family and friends back home.

Summer Projects

Here are a few things we heard from students who took part:

We told this Muslim student that in Christianity there was no works scale and that God sent His only Son Jesus to die for us so that we could have life in Him. She hung her head and replied, "Oh, our religion of Islam does not have that. That is where Islam and Christianity is different. I wish my prophet did that for our people." It was one of the most heartbreaking and amazing experiences I've ever had sharing my faith.

God showed me that I am really passive, shift the blame, look for the a group option, and etc. and that i need to change to be more of a man.

God used this summer project to truly show me His power and faithfulness. I've grown ever more reliant on Him as well as the power if prayer. My eyes have been opened to the great need of people bold and passionate enough to share.

Truly a life changing experience! The best summer of my life!
